ABOUT Being a mom to three boys, I find that I am always trying to find ways to entertain my kiddies. Almost seven years ago, I decided that I needed to know Orange County better and find fun places and things to do that my kids would love. I found that we could enjoy an entire summer of fun activities around our very own community of Orange County, without ever getting bored. When my friends started asking me how I find all these great fun things to do, I decided to start a blog to share our many adventures. That is how Popsicle Blog / Sandy Toes and Popsicles began.

Since June of 2009, Popsicle Blog has been a source that moms and dads come to daily for weekly lists of great things to do around Orange County and Southern California, parenting tips, travel and crafts....and LOTS of recipes! Our readers consist of mainly of parents, families and grandparents, but we have many others who visit us too. Our readers are in varying age groups with most readers having at least one child. We work very hard in providing honest and valuable reviews on kid-friendly and family friendly activities as well as products, restaurants, travel places. Most of all, we love family, and love finding ways to keep kids and parents active, stimulated and enjoying the simple things in life.
